Week Two Cheat Sheet

Antecedent- Is the noun that is replaced with the pronoun in the sentence.

Ex: Abner is smelly and he takes a bath.

A predicate adjective is a subject complement, a word or group of words that follows a linking verb or verb phrase such as is, am, were, smell, feel, taste, look, sound, have been, and did seem.

Ex: The sky looks dark and stormy today.

A subordinating conjunction is a word that connects an independent clause to a dependent clause. An independent clause can stand alone as a sentence. ... They are not complete sentences. For example, "because she didn't study" is not a complete sentence.

How to Paraphrase

1. Read the entire paragraph or section of text. Think about the main point the author makes.
2. Put the text aside.
3. Write the central or main idea from the text in your own words.
4. Reread the original text. Ask yourself:
 - Does the paraphrase have the same meaning as the original text?
 - Should I add or correct any details?
 - Did I use any exact phrases or unique words from the original text? Do these have quotation marks around them?

Quotation

“Whether you think that you can, or that you can’t, you are usually right.”

Henry Ford (industrialist and inventor)

Close Reading and Short Answer

How to read like you mean it

1. Skim the passage once to get a general idea what the passage is about:

Interview with Celia Walker Friedman

Triangle Factory Fire Survivor

Job: Examiner

9th floor

Interviewed: August 8, 1957

"When I worked in the Triangle shop all the other girls looked on me like I was a real 'Yankee.' When we came to this country I was only 5 years old and by the time I went to work in the shop I spoke with a real American accent. In the Triangle Co. I am sure that the girls thought I was American born.

I worked on the 9th floor as an examiner. My job was to look over the work to see that it was made correctly - if it wasn't correct I got it back to the Operators for fixing. I worked at the last table on the floor. In front of me were the rows of machines running in the same direction as my table. I could see clear across the shop. Way down in the front were the windows. I don't know if it was Washington or Greene St. To my left on the other wall were the windows to the other street.

On the day of the fire I had gotten my clothes. I stood at my table ready to leave. I looked across the shop. In front of me I saw flames on the outside of the windows shooting up. The flames were climbing up from the 8th floor. I was scared and it seemed to me that even before I could move, everybody in the shop started to scream and holler. The girls at the machines began to climb up on the machine tables maybe because it was that they were frightened or maybe they thought they could run to the elevator doors on top of the machines. The aisles were narrow and blocked by the chairs and baskets. I know now that there was a fire escape in back of me but I ran to the elevator because that was the only place to run to."

2. Go back in the passage and reread again, this time reading closely and underlining, annotating the text.

3. Test Practice: Short Answer

On the test, in order to receive full credit for your short answers, you must answer the question correctly and provide at least two details from the text to support your answer. One detail should ALWAYS be a quote copied word for word from the text (which means you must put quotation marks "like this" around the words you copy). You must also EXPLAIN each quote and/or paraphrase, reading between the lines.

Question 1: In the second paragraph, the Celia Walker Friedman describes the setup of the 9th floor, where she worked as an examiner. Explain why she might have chosen to include these details. Use two details from the interview to support your answer.

Question 2: Many would argue that the loss of lives at the Triangle Factory Fire could have been prevented with better working conditions. Using details from the interview, support this claim. Use two details from the interview to support your answer.
